

Getting Used To IT Terminolog

IT	Information Technology
Input	Devices that feed data/inform
Output	Devices that display data/info
CPU	Central Processing Unit
Microprocessor	Brain of the computer.
Software	A set of instructions
Operating System	A set of basic / fundamental software
Program	A set of software instructions
Process	A program in its state of execution
Hardware	Any physical component
Printer	A device that produces hard copies
Plotter	A device similar to a printer
Touch Pad	Inbuilt mouse
Touch ID	A security key on the keyboard
Touch Screen	A display that can be used an input
LAN	Local Area Network
WAN	Wide Area Network
Protocols	Set of rules needed to communication
Traffic	A set of request and response
Programming Languages	It is an established set of programs
BIOS	Basic Input Output System
System	A set of integrating elements
Bits	Lowest level of instruction

Bytes	8 bits makes one byte.
Binary Language	Language used by the computer
3GL / 4GL / 5GL	Refer sheet on Prog Lang GL
System Tools	Software that is usually part of the system
Office Tools	MS-Office , G-Suite or Libre Office
Utilities	Programs to support the computer infrastructure
Network	Inter-connected computers
http	hyper text transfer protocol
html	hyper text marked up language
Open Source Software	free software for everyone
Enterprise Software	Software used across the company
Application Software	Software built using a program
RAM	Random Access Memory
Hard Disk	Secondary storage used to store data
SSD	Solid State Drive
Keyboard	Input device
Mouse	Input device
Upload	Transferring locally stored objects to web
Download	From the web to storing it locally
Onsite	Working at the office
Offsite	Working remotely
Files	Documents
Folders	Directory